The Family of Wesley Martin

We wish to thank and express our appreciation to all of our friends, neighbors and relatives for all their kindness and good deeds they did for us while we were sick. Also for the prayers, food, visits, phone calls and flowers. Also thanks to Rev. G. E. Hughes, Dr. C. G. O'Brien and the Rescue Squad. May God bless each of you.
Roland and Carrie Smith 8-7-1p

I would like to express my appreciation to my good friends and neighbors for the cards, telephone calls, visits while in the hospital and since my return home.
Especially do I want to thank everyone for the nice vegetables they brought me.
Hattie Guthrie 8-7-1p

Thanks to Liberty Baptist Church Adult Sunday School classes, missionary circles, UDC, WOW, Young Hearts' Club, and each individual for cards, flowers, prayers, phone calls and visits. Especially my pastor Doyle Chauncey for phone calls and prayers while I was in Duke Hospital for seven weeks. Thank you for your concern. It gave me strength and courage to know that you cared. My prayer is that God will bless you. Addie Guild 8-7-1p

Words can not express how grateful we are to our relatives and friends for your kindness and concern shown us while Kermit and Gary were in the hospital. We are deeply grateful to Rev. Chauncey and our friends at Liberty for their special prayers that speeded a quick recovery. Also Dr. John A. Mathews who was so faithful and patient with us during Gary's illness. Our prayers are that God will bless each of you.

The American Revolution Bicentennial: Celebration Or Social Movement

By D. W. Mac Pherson
Virginia Tech Extension

With the collapse of the proposed Philadelphia Bicentennial Exposition in 1972, the focus of celebration of the American Revolution Bicentennial has shifted from one large center to every state and local community in the nation. The Bicentennial now belongs to all the people of our Commonwealth - from Arlington to Bristol, Norfolk to Covington. County and City Bicentennial Committees, civic groups, youth organizations, local officials and individuals, educational institutions, students, churches, and historic societies - these are the types of community agencies, groups, and citizenry which are best qualified to plan and execute meaningful commemorative programs. They must offer a large part of the leadership if the Bicentennial is to realize its potential as a force for good in the life of the nation.

What is there to celebrate? The most successful Revolution! According to renowned historian, Irving Kristol, "The American Revolution was successful in that those who led it were able, in later years, to look back in tranquility at what they had wrought and to say it was good." The American Revolution was also successful in another important respect: it was a mild and relatively bloodless revolution . . ." The two hundreth birthday of the American Revolution certainly merits celebration. "But it would be reassuring if a part of that celebration were to consist, not merely of pious talk but of a serious and sustained effort to achieve a deeper and more widespread understanding of just what it is we are celebrating."

The Bicentennial of the United States then, shall be: (1) National in scope, providing opportunities for participation on the part of all Americans. (2) Developed during the Bicentennial era, beginning in 1970 and continuing through 1976, the focal year, to 1983, marking two hundred years after the Treaty of Paris. (3) A time for review and reaffirmation of the basic principles on which our nation was founded, remembering that our forefathers pledged their lives, fortunes, and sacred honor for such principles.

The American Revolution Bicentennial has three thematic components through which all Americans will be able to participate: (1) Heritage '76 - A nationwide summons to recall our heritage and to place it in historic perspective. All groups within our society are urged to re-examine our origins, our values, and the meaning of America - to take pride in our accomplishments and to dramatize our development. (2) Festival USA - A nationwide opportunity to program activities and events, to stimulate travel and to encourage our citizens to expand their knowledge of our country and extend a particular welcome to visitors. (3) Horizons '76 - A nationwide challenge to every American, acting individually or with others, to undertake at least one principle project which manifests the pride, the priorities, and the hopes of his community. The Bicentennial then is an opportunity to improve the quality of life for our nations third century.

But what do we mean by "The American Revolution." Do we mean the American War? To many Americans, the American Revolution was more than military battles; it was a social movement for radical change in the social, economic, and political institutions within the Colonies. As John Adams wrote, many years after the fighting concluded, "What do we mean by the Revolution? The War? That was no part of the Revolution, it was only an effect and consequence of it. The Revolution was in the minds of the people, and this was effected from 1760 to 1775, in the course of fifteen years before a drop of blood was shed at Lexington."

This "radical change in principles, opinions, sentiments, and affections of the people" is today commemorated by many as the real American Revolution. Indeed, the Declaration of Independence is in itself a radical document. Read it sometimes soon, as you probably have not since your high school American History class. It in fact says, in part: "governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it." Would you today sign such a document for purpose of reaffirming your faith in its principles, or would you, like many, call it "commie junk."

And what do you know of the Colonial Background to the American Revolution? The British Background? The American Tory? Economics of democracy? Blacks, women, and the American Indian involvement in the American Revolution? Did you know that Paul Revere, remembered today for his famous midnight ride and his skill as a silversmith, was also a master propagandist for the rebel cause, and that his cartoon of the Boston Massacre was reprinted throughout the colonies? That when the Declaration of Independence was signed, Virginia's farmers overthrew the landed gentry, and moved the state capitol from chic Williamsburg, to the West, where they could keep an eye on it? Nor is our nation's history without a light side. What could be of more human or historical interest than the nugget that the British general at Fort Ticonderoga surrendered with pants in hand. The textbooks always made him dress for the occasion.

So, how do we now meaningfully commemorate the American Revolution? With parades and hotdogs, or with marches against corporations, while shouting for "economic democracy." Do we do interpretive early American arts and crafts, or closely examine the social, economic, and political power structure within our own community and compare it with the two hundred year old principles set forth by our founding fathers? The answer, of course, lies in our personal search of who we are and who we want to be, as individuals, Virginians, and Americans. But be sure of one thing: the American Revolution Bicentennial is, literally, a chance of a lifetime. Let us prove wrong the Bicentennial comment which Hughes Rudd made on national television when he said, "It probably won't be worth a continental." (A piece of paper money issued by the Continental Congress. It became almost worthless before the end of the war, hence the phrase "not worth a continental.")

In the Circuit Court of Appomattox County.
IN THE MATTER OF: Last will and testament of Hattie Woolridge, deceased.
TO: Unknown parties, being heirs at law of Hattie Woolridge, deceased.
ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to determine whether the paper writing, dated December 22, 1965, is or is not the true last will and testament of the said Hattie Woolridge, who died March 25, 1975, in Appomattox County, Virginia, and if so, to admit said paper writing to probate as the last will and testament of Hattie Woolridge.

An affidavit having been made and filed that there may be parties interested for or against the establishment of said last will and testament and whose names and addresses are unknown to the affiant, it is ORDERED that they appear before the Circuit Court of Appomattox County on August 27, 1975, at 10:00 A.M., to do what is necessary to protect their interests in this suit.

It is further ORDERED that the foregoing portion of this order be published for once a week for four (4) successive weeks in the Times-Virginian, a newspaper published and having general circulation in Appomattox County.

"In Memorium" - With Truth And Gratitude.

One year ago today my Sister Reva Robertson Plunkett died unexpectedly. The Family has received many sympathetic thoughts and messages of compassion in esteem of her. For this we have felt a measure of comfort and relief. Nevertheless, I find it inexplicable that many of Reva's friends and working associates have yet to be informed of the true cause of her demise. Therefore, I consider it both timely and appropriate to be factual. An Autopsy revealed Reva suffered a blow to the head and subsequent death. Further, the Medical Examiner precisely recorded that no trace of alcohol was found in her blood. Reva would want you to know.

Card Of Thanks

The family of Calvin J. McCoy expresses their deepest appreciation for the many cards, flowers, donations and food given in sincere affection to honor our beloved one.

There are not enough words to express the peace, love and comfort we feel by the kindness shown us by the many wonderful friends, relatives and neighbors.

We want to say a very special thanks to Rev. H. W. Pryor and Rev. R. Q. Lawing for a beautiful service.

May God richly bless each and every one of you.
